

A diverse (in ownership and content) and critical media is essential to healthy democracy. Allowing media corporations to own more and more media outlets serves to threaten our democracy by limiting the information the people have access to.